Drug Inspector Job Interview Preparation Guide.

Question # 1

What is cough Medicine?

Answer:-

Teens have taken to "robotripping," a woozy type of high caused by drinking cough syrup. The active ingredient in several major cough syrups, dextromethorphan (or DXM), is responsible for the intoxicating effects - and even a chemical dependency in some cases. Codeine cough syrups, which are even more potent, were recently taken off the shelves because of how dangerous they are - but teens can still get them from somebody with a prescription.

Question # 2

What is LSD?

Answer:-

This infamous psychedelic drug known for its 12-hour "trip" full of hallucinations has been popular with teens since the 1960s and the Flower Generation. It's typically sold on small squares of paper similar to postage stamps or absorbed into sugar cubes, which are then ingested. In its most basic form, LSD is a clear, odorless liquid. Last year, nearly 3% of high schoolers took acid, and approximately 5 million Americans aged 12-25 have experimented with LSD in their lifetimes.

Question # 3

What is vicodin?

Answer:-

Vicodin is the second-most popular prescription drug amongst 12th graders - around 10% use it, with 5% using it for non-medical reasons. This powerful painkiller is a combination of hydrocodone and acetaminophen, and in 2014, the DEA reclassified it from a schedule III to a schedule II drug due to its widespread misuse and potential for addiction. More than 130 million Vicodin prescriptions are filled each year in the U.S., and people with prescriptions often sell pills to people looking for a fix.

Question # 5

Tell me a Difficult Work Situation And How You Overcame It In Nursing?

Answer:-

Give concrete examples of difficult situations that actually happened at work. Then discuss what you did to solve the problem. Keep your answers positive (Even though it was difficult when Jane Doe quit without notice, we were able to rearrange the department workload to cover the position until a replacement was hired.) and be specific. Itemize what you did and how you did it.

Question # 7

What is adderall?

Answer:-

Intended to help kids with attention disorders, Adderall is now the poster child of prescription drug abuse among teens. Adderall is also among the most popular study aid drugs, which teens seek out to increase their focus and energy levels on exam days and for all-night study sessions. In recent years, it's also been growing in popularity at parties.

Question # 8

What is inhalants?

Answer:-

One of the most resourceful ways that teens get high is by breathing in gas, household cleaners, markers and other random objects with noxious fumes. The umbrella term given to these items - when they're used to get high - is inhalants. When a teen uses an inhalant, they will often empty some of the contents onto a rag or into a plastic bag, and then hold it to their face and breathe in, called huffing.

Question # 9

What is synthetic Marijuana?

Answer:-

Similar to bath salts, a number of companies began selling synthetic marijuana in the 2000s. Packaged in small, colorful wrapping and given catchy names, these products bypassed drug laws by using a mishmash of legal chemicals and by being sold as "herbal incense." When smoked, the high from these chemicals mimics the high of marijuana. In 2012, 11.3% of high schools seniors used it. In some cases - after just a single use - synthetic marijuana side effects have led to serious health issues or even death.

Question # 14

What is marijuana?

Answer:-

The green, pungent leaves of the cannabis plant - known as "marijuana," "weed" and a host of other names - maintain a stronghold as the most popular illicit drug among U.S. teens. When smoked, marijuana releases THC, a potent psychoactive chemical. This makes the user feel relaxed, heightens their senses and has a mild hallucinogenic effect. It also causes paranoia and impaired motor function and is highly addictive.

Question # 15

Please explain me does Your Child Need Drug or Alcohol Treatment?

Answer:-

If you notice signs of addiction, and you hear your teen and their friends use some of this slang, they may have a drug abuse or drug addiction problem. We understand this realization can be jarring - many parents feel shocked, confused, embarrassed, or downplay the problem, calling it "normal." It's ok to be afraid and uncertain what to do - social stigma of drug addiction makes us view addicts as hopeless, bad people - but it's crucial you spring to action once you discover your teen's problem. The sooner you accept that your child is sick with the disease of addiction, the sooner you can get them the professional help they need.

Question # 18

What is OxyContin?

Answer:-

Oxycodone is a narcotic painkiller prescribed in slow-release pills that work over a period of 12 hours, the most popular brand of which is OxyContin. The prescription caused a wave of teen incidents in the 2000s, including many instances of addiction and death. Although the tablets are slow-release, teens crush them into a powder and snort them, releasing the full amount and potency of the drug all at once. As this trend caught fire, users began spending upwards of $80 for a single pill. To counteract the growing popularity of the drug, in 2013, the FDA approved a variant that couldn't be crushed into powder.

Question # 21

What is heroin?

Answer:-

Heroin goes by many names. This intensely addictive drug is typically used by injection with a needle. Once it enters the body, heroin blocks the pain receptors in the brain, inducing a numb, euphoric state for a period of hours.

Only around 1% of high school seniors have tried heroin, but each teen who experiments with the drug is at risk for the drug's many serious side effects. Between 2002 and 2013, heroin use in the U.S. jumped 63%. In 2009, 21,000 Americans sought treatment for teen heroin addiction.

Question # 22

What is cocaine?

Answer:-

One of the most notorious illicit drugs, cocaine is a white powder that causes a short burst of energy and euphoria when snorted, smoked or injected. Cocaine highs fade quickly and leave users craving another hit, often turning casual teen cocaine abuse into a lasting addiction.

Question # 23

What is xanax?

Answer:-

Curious teens may abuse the anti-anxiety medication Xanax (pronounced ZAN-ex) - or the similar drugs Valium, Klonopin and Ativan - and feel drowsy and out of it, with very few so-called "fun" side effects. Once they start taking it, it can be difficult to stop. The more they use, the greater their risk of serious side effects, like twitching, depression and seizures. Teens who mix Xanax with alcohol or other drugs are especially at risk. Between 2005 and 2011, the number of ER visits related to Xanax or similar prescription drugs nearly doubled.

Question # 25

What is PCP?

Answer:-

This dissociative anesthetic drug drives users into disorientation and causes a loss of bodily and mental control. Not only can PCP lead to mental health issues such as severe depression, but it can cause psychosis. In fact, many tragic suicides, murders and accidental deaths have been attributed to PCP use. Though PCP is not as common as drugs like cocaine, hundreds of thousands of American teenagers put themselves at risk by using this substance.

Question # 26

What is ecstasy (MDMA)?

Answer:-

Ecstasy has become the go-to club drug for young people, used at parties, nightclubs, concerts and music festivals. Ecstasy - the chemical MDMA, often mixed with other ingredients - causes a rush of dopamine (a chemical that regulates happiness and related sensations) in the brain, and is known to make users feel more connected to each other.

Question # 27

Explain me do You Prefer To Work Independently Or On A Team In Nursing Field?

Answer:-

I am equally comfortable working as a member of a team and independently. In researching the company, your mission statement and the job description, I could see similarities to my previous position where there were some assignments that required a great deal of independent work and research and others where the team effort was most effective. As I said, I'm comfortable with both.

Question # 28

What are depressants?

Answer:-

When prescription drugs make their way to the street to be sold for misuse or nonmedical use, they often are given street names to disguise the topic of conversations that might be overheard. The same is true for depressants-barbiturates and benzodiazepines-which are medications prescribed as sedatives or tranquilizers to treat anxiety and insomnia.

Question # 29

What is ketamine?

Answer:-

Designed as a veterinary anesthetic, ketamine has become an increasingly popular drug with teens. This colorless liquid or white powder has a tranquilizing effect, and causes both breathing and heart rate to slow down. This sends users into a "K-hole," where it becomes difficult to move. Teens use ketamine for a detached, out-of-body experience, and it's become a common date rape drug for the same reason. In the past year, nearly 3% of 12th graders in U.S. have used ketamine, and people aged 12-25 account for 74% of ER visits related to ketamine abuse.

Question # 35

What is ritalin?

Answer:-

Ritalin is a slightly less common, but equally dangerous relative of the drug Adderall. Teens abuse it as a study aid drug to get an edge when writing papers and cramming for tests. It's most commonly prescribed for teens with ADHD. Most teens get their Ritalin from siblings, classmates, or from their doctors after faking the symptoms of ADHD. A 2013 report revealed that 5 million students in the U.S. have abused Ritalin or Adderall, a 33% increase from 2008.
